Comments: 'It appeared to be a adult male, it had gotten caught in the front/top of the pre-net. It was located on the outside, so I was not able to get to close, because they only brought it up to the top of the stern ramp, and cut a couple strands that had it tangled into the gear, and it slide back into the water free, but it was very dead and stinking. As the captain told me, they where not bringing it onboard if the could avoid it. So no tissue sample or pictures, bad weather.'
