NOAA's 2018 Hurricane Season Awareness Webinars

NOAA's Southeast and Caribbean Regional Collaboration Team (SECART) is pleased to host a Hurricane Awareness webinar series in advance of the 2018 Atlantic Hurricane Season. The webinars are intended to improve the understanding of NOAA's hurricane-related products and services, so that, with our partners in the emergency management and broadcast communities, we can build a Weather Ready Nation.

The five-part series (see below) includes topics such as tropical cyclone research and forecast improvements, understanding uncertainty in forecasts, and inland flooding. Speakers include NOAA experts from the National Hurricane Center (NHC), the Atlantic Oceanographic and Meteorological Laboratory (AOML), the Weather Prediction Center (WPC), and National Weather Service (NWS) Weather Forecast Offices (WFOs). The fifth webinar in the series presents highlights of the other webinars and will be presented in Spanish for our Spanish-speaking constituents.
