

Ricky Jackson

From: Ricky Jackson
Sent: Monday, September 9, 2019 5:41 PM
To: louis.ucellini@noaa.gov
Subject: Alabama prediction
Attachments: weather service birmingham.jpg

Dr. Uccellini,

I am a U. S. Navy employee stationed at MCAS Cherry Point, NC. As you know we just had a brush with hurricane Dorian, and last year New Bern took a direct hit from Florence. I remember the days before satellites, Doppler radar, and computers and from my perspective, the accuracy of weather forecasting has not improved proportionally. Maybe the President was wrong, but an agency that has barely a 50% accuracy is living in a glass house when it comes to calling out someone for a missed forecast. My new life mission is to make sure to rub this photo in the face of as many people as possible. To publicly disparage a sitting President is repugnant, especially from someone in a Federal office. I truly hope that the person responsible for publicly insulting our President is fired and has his trailer repossessed. I also hope that his wife has another illegitimate baby by someone else. Maybe you could send down a memorandum of understanding not to insult the President and piss off over half the country. There is a right way, a wrong way, and a better way to handle things, and this person is out of your control. Maybe the NWS needs better leadership.

Sincerely,

Ricky Jackson