Director Roberts, I implore you to make every effort to learn the identity of the individual(s) who directed some NOAA employee to issue an official rebuke to the Birmingham NWS office for its tweet correcting the President's erroneous claims concerning the potential impacts of Dorian. At the time the President tweeted his cautionary remarks it was firmly established in the weather forecasting community that the likelihood of Alabama's experiencing any significant impacts from Dorian was virtually zero, quite the opposite of the President's representations.

A concerned citizen, James Wilson.
