

Curtis Clothier

From: Curtis Clothier
Sent: Saturday, September 7, 2019 7:37 PM
To: julie.roberts@noaa.gov
Subject: NOAA's lost credibility

Dear Julie,

I found your name on the NOAA website and I hope you are the right person to communicate with. If not, my apologies and please forward this message to the miserable coward(s) at NOAA who have backed-up President Trump's assertion that Hurricane Dorian was possibly hitting Alabama.

Questions: Is NOAA giving up on science? Is NOAA now a division of Fox News? Is the head of NOAA looking for a better paying job in this administration?

I've spent my entire life (60 plus years) admiring the excellent work that NOAA does. Weather, earth, and space science is possibly the most important topics facing our planet. NOAA's politically tinged statement falsely supporting Trump's claims DESTROYS your credibility.

How about climate change, is that a Chinese hoax as the president asserts?

I hope my comments find someone who cares, but if not, just know that there are millions of Americans who appreciate the 'old NOAA'. Stick to science.

Curtis Clothier