Thanks in advance for publicly identifying the source of the recent NOAA support for President Trump's mis-steps regarding hurricane Dorian. Leaving it attributed to the entire organization makes you look a little disingenuous, because the staff at NOAA enjoys incredible credibility with the populace. We depend on you to issue timely, clear, and above board announcements that have identifiable sources. The level of success this previous policy has had is remarkable, as seen in the decrease in weather related damage and death we've seen over previous decades. I appreciate your willingness to return to that policy, despite the political risk it would create for you. We depend on this.
