Subject: Shame on the NOAA

How could you allow the NOAA to debase it's good reputation by supporting a blatantly silly mistake that the President made? It's not that the mistake about Alabama was a big deal. We all make mistakes and this was a small and understandable one. What was crazy was his insistence on revisiting the mistake over and over again. If you had honestly thought that he was not mistaken you would have come out immediately with a statement after the NWS in Birmingham corrected his mistaken claim about Alabama being in danger. After 5 days it's obvious that you are knuckling under to political pressure from the White House (Wilbur Ross?). We have to be able to trust scientists to be non-partisan. You have done us a huge disservice with this cowardly statement.

Yes, I am partisan but you should not be.
