Subject: sad times at NOAA

Dear Ms Roberts and Mr Jacobs,

I wish to express how sad I am that you choose to politicize the work of your agency to appease someone who actually doesn't have a clue about the science behind forecasting. It is especially sad since Ms Roberts has been described as someone with experience in emergency management. She should know better what incorrect and misleading information can do at a time of emergency and how needed assests can be diverted to the wrong places. In the future you might consider doing daily briefings on Fox and Friends so we are not left with a President who cannot keep up with new information that is given to him through regular challenges. This might help in eliminating the need to twist PR releases in the future and begin to restore NOAA's credibility in the future - a credibility has was hard won in the first place by administrators with more backbone than displayed by the two of you.

Sincerely yours
Winifred J. Weizer
